

Guidelines for Submission

Methods of Article Submission

All article contributions should be submitted as email attachments to Shixing Wen, Editor-in-Chief (shixingwen@yahoo.com).

Article Length

In contrast with the traditional print journal, our e-journal does not impose limitation to the article length. In other words, authors do not need to confine their thought to an arbitrary limitation of a fixed number of pages.

Reference Style

Chinese Librarianship: an International Electronic Journal (CLIEJ) adopts the Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association for its reference style, with the following modifications:

1. spell out the full name of the author, rather than using the initial letter for the first or given name;
 2. separate authors with semi-color, rather than comma.
-

Examples for print sources:

- For a book:
 - Garlock, Kristen L., & Piontek, Sherry. (1996). Building the service-based library web site: A step-by-step guide to design and options. Chicago, IL: American Library Association.
 - Cozic, Charles P. (Ed.). (1996). The information highway. San Diego, CA: Greenhaven Press.
-

- For a chapter in an edited book:
 - Gore, Al. (1996). A global information infrastructure can benefit the world. In Charles P. Cozic (Ed.), The information highway (pp. 95-98). San Diego, CA: Greenhaven Press.
-

- For a print journal article:
 - Brown, Mary E. (1996). By any other name: Accounting for failure in the naming of subject categories. Library & Information Science Research: An international journal, 17, 347-385
-

Examples for electronic sources:

- For an e-journal article:
 - Wen, Shixing. (1995). Netscape: A wonderful tool for browsing and interacting on the Internet. CALA E-Journal. URL: <http://www.cala-web.org/publications/calaej6.htm>
-

- For a web page:
 - Zhu, Qiang. (1995). Latest development of Internet in Mainland China.. URL: <http://darkwing.uoregon.edu/~felsing/cstuff/zhu.html>
-

- For a posting on a listserv:
 - Elrod, J. McRee. (16 Jan 1996). Cataloguer's role in catalogue construction: A modest proposal. AUTOCAT. E-mail: listserv@ubvm.cc.buffalo.edu. Message: get autocat log9601c
-